Erika was born in the City of Reading which is located in the Greater Philadelphia region of Pennsylvania, USA. She was educated within the Downingtown Area School District and attended Immaculata University for Undergraduate Studies as well as DeSales University for Post-Baccalaureate Studies during her early career. Erika completed three internships prior to graduating which helped her obtain employment at the height of economic recession of 2008.

Erika entered the financial services industry with a dual role in both Accounting and Compliance in which she reported to the Chief Financial Officer/Chief Compliance Officer of a small savings association. Erika is committed to continuous education and throughout her working career she earned a Masters of Business Administration with a focus in Accounting and became a Certified Internal Auditor, Certified Anti-Money Laundering Specialist, and Certified Regulatory Compliance Manager.

Over the years she has worked with bankers in leadership roles to develop compliance management programs designed to comply with the rapidly changing regulatory environment since the enactment of the Dodd Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act. She is presently pursuing a Juris Doctorate from San Francisco Law School as a 2L while employed as a Compliance Officer supporting new business initiatives at a large, globally-recognized financial institution as an advocate for consumer compliance.

Outside of these activities, Erika serves as the Communications Committee Chair of the Philadelphia Chapter of the Institute of Internal Auditors promoting the professional internal auditing as well as a Treasurer of Pass the Debt, Inc. which is a non-profit organization that provides financial literacy curriculum to children and young adults in grades K-12.

She is an avid enthusiast of the arts, participates in competitive tennis for the United States Tennis Association and is preparing to run in her fourth marathon in the state of California. Erika seeks to nurture and inspire the next generation of young women and children that have not come to realize their self-worth or recognize their abilities and potential to achieve success. She invests her time and effort mentoring those in her community through almsgiving, teaching children fruitful activities such as tennis, landscaping and revitalizing parks in Philadelphia neighborhoods, and serving meals to children and their families in recovery at the local Ronald McDonald House.

Erika seeks to amplify these community activities through involvement at a director level with the To Love Children non-profit organization in furtherance of their mission and vision of empowering and fostering underprivileged youth around the world.
